

CALL FOR PAPERS

III International Conference Language, Literature, Wine and Territory

Venha mais vinho e dêem-mo vezes cento

University of Évora, Portugal. 17-19 November 2021

The University of Évora announces the opening of the call for papers for III International Congress on Language, Literature, Wine and Territory: «Wine, teach me all my history» (António Barbosa Bacelar).

Similar to what happened in the first two editions, at the University of Rioja (Spain) and at the University of Piemonte Oriental, in Vercelli (Italy), this third edition of the III International Conference on Language, Literature, Wine and Territory aims to bring together renowned experts as well as researchers, integrated in universities, research centres and other institutions, with an identity tradition linked to wine, who wish to present their reflections around the proposed thematic lines. This congress aims to be a meeting point and to share synergies, aiming to bring together institutions and wine regions that share interest in language and literature.

Ricardo Reis, heteronym of Fernando Pessoa, writes:

*Não só vinho, mas nele o olvido, deito
Na taça: serei ledó, porque a dita
É ignara. Quem, lembrando
Ou prevendo, sorrira?
Dos brutos, não a vida, senão a alma,
Consigamos, pensando; recolhidos
No impalpável destino
Que não espera nem lembra.
Com mão mortal elevo à mortal boca
Em frágil taça o passageiro vinho,
Baços os olhos feitos
Para deixar de ver.*

With this quote, we invite the submission of proposals whose theme fits this sphere or the following the suggested guidelines:

1. Language and discourse around wine.
2. Culture of wine in literature and history.
3. Technical innovations in wine cultivation methods and winemaking process.
4. Territory, society, economy and wine tourism.
